WELCOME FROM THE MASTER OF CEREMONIES

It is my great pleasure to welcome you to the installation ceremony of Dr. Mayme Hostetter as the 22nd president of Hamline University. Serving as master of ceremonies for this historic occasion is a profound honor and privilege for me.

The inauguration of a president is perhaps the most formal ceremony a university holds. It represents our history through the presentation of the seal, charter, and mace, as well as the elaborate academic regalia and ornate banners rooted in centuries of tradition. It also represents the evolving nature of education. Today we bring together new and long-time faculty and staff, our current students, alumni, friends, and supporters of Hamline as we celebrate the diversity and strength of our university.

As we honor these traditions today, we also look forward with great anticipation. President Hostetter brings exceptional vision and leadership to Hamline at this pivotal moment in our institution's journey. Her installation marks not just a transition, but a new chapter filled with possibility and promise for our entire university community.

We are honored by your presence here today. Thank you for joining us as we celebrate the university's rich history and this special moment of renewal. Let us begin this celebration.

Wesley Kisting PhD

BIOGRAPHY OF PRESIDENT MAYME HOSTETTER

President Hostetter is a native of the Twin Cities. She attended Harvard University as a National Merit Scholar, graduating magna cum laude in English. President Hostetter earned her EdM from Harvard Graduate School of Education and her EdD from Columbia University's Teachers College. She has also worked in MIT's Department of Brain and Cognitive Sciences as a member of the Gabrieli Laboratory, investigating the neural pathways of typical and atypical reading development, and has English teaching experience.

Mayme Hostetter began her educational leadership career in 2008 as a founding director of teaching and learning at Teacher U at Hunter College in New York City. In 2011, she helped to found the Relay Graduate School of Education, also based in New York City.

As Relay grew, so too did President Hostetter's role and responsibilities. As president of Relay, she ensured that this relatively new institution was financially and administratively stable, right from the start. Under her administration, Relay carried no debt and was the only graduate school of education in the country to earn five straight "A" ratings from the National Council on Teacher Quality, the toughest evaluator in the field. Last spring, President Hostetter was named a 2024 Presidential Leadership Scholar by the Bush, Clinton, and LBJ Foundations.

As Hamline's 22nd president, Mayme Hostetter brings a wealth of experience, a commitment to student success, and a desire to work with our community as a team player.

ABOUT THE CEREMONY

The installation of a new president is one of the most elaborate and formal ceremonies a university conducts. Many symbolic and meaningful traditions are represented in the processional and the ceremony itself. This is a guide to the meaning behind today's historic event

CHIEF MARSHAL

The chief marshal is the highest honorary position in an academic ceremony. Professor Jerry Artz, a nuclear physicist, joined Hamline's faculty in 1977. Distinguished by his passion for physics and ability to inspire students, Professor Artz was awarded the Burton Grimes Teaching Award, the Outstanding Teaching Award from the Hamline Undergraduate Student Congress (three times), the Outstanding Faculty Award from the alumni association, and the Wesley Award from the Hamline University Board of Trustees. Across his career, Professor Artz has secured 11 federal grants; served as a scientific advisor to the US House of Representatives and consultant to 3M Corporation; presented more than 70 academic papers; authored twelve peer-reviewed publications; and received eight patents. He currently serves as Hamline's radiation safety officer and faculty representative to the Minnesota and Wisconsin intercollegiate athletic conferences.

MASTER OF CEREMONIES

Dr. Wesley Kisting joined Hamline University as provost, dean of the faculty, and professor of English in July 2025. As Hamline's chief academic officer, Dr. Kisting provides leadership in establishing academic priorities, as well as support for the development of innovative academic programs and student success initiatives. He also oversees advising, athletics, inclusive excellence, institutional effectiveness, the library, and registration and records. Prior to joining Hamline, Dr. Kisting served as dean of arts and sciences at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls and held multiple leadership roles at Augusta University in Georgia. A first-generation college student and scholar of early modern English literature, Dr. Kisting earned his bachelor's degree in English and writing from Marquette University and his PhD in English from the University of Iowa.

THE PROCESSIONAL

The colorful and dignified inauguration processional is one of the most elaborate and long-standing rituals in academic tradition. This procession has several divisions, each preceded by a banner called a gonfalon. Gonfalons date back to medieval Italian republics; those who carry them are called gonfaloniers. The gonfaloniers in today's ceremony represent Hamline University's faculty, staff, and student organizations. The presence of delegates from other colleges, universities, and organizations is a tradition. Delegates process in the order of the date of founding of their institution. Today's ceremony includes 26 delegates (page 9).

Faculty from all schools of the university march in the processional wearing academic regalia. Learned societies that celebrate academic excellence are also represented. The presidential mace (page 8) at the front of the procession is carried by Professor Betsy Parrish, a senior faculty member in the School of Education and Leadership.

GUIDE TO ACADEMIC REGALIA

The academic dress of the faculty originated in the Middle Ages, when scholars wore the garb of the monastic orders every day simply to keep warm.

The academic cap, or mortarboard, has come to be symbolic of academia, and the flat square hat with a tassel can be worn by graduates and undergraduates alike. In many universities, doctoral holders wear a soft, rounded tam, also known as a Tudor bonnet. The tassel may be gold or silver, or it may indicate the university's colors or a specific college or discipline.

The master's gown is black with bell sleeves. Doctoral robes are more ornate, with three velvet stripes, or chevrons, across the sleeves and velvet on the front of the gown. Gowns are typically black, although some schools use robes in the school's colors.

Holders of master's and doctoral degrees wear colorful hoods. The color of the hood's velvet edging symbolizes the wearer's field of expertise; the most common are dark blue for the PhD (doctor of philosophy) and purple for the JD (juris doctor, law).

The president's robe is similar to a doctoral robe, but has four chevrons on the sleeve instead of three. President Hostetter's robe is embroidered with the Hamline seal, and she wears her earned academic hood.

Examples of other disciplines' colors include:

Arts, letters, humanities: white	Music: pink
Business, accountancy, commerce: drab	Nursing: apricot
Economics: copper	Oratory (speech): silver gray
Education: light blue	Philosophy: dark blue
Engineering: orange	Physical education: sage green
Fine arts or architecture: brown	Public administration or foreign service: peacock blue
Journalism: crimson	Public health: salmon pink
Law: purple	Science: golden yellow
Library science: lemon	Social work: citron
Medicine: green	Theology: scarlet

GREETINGS TO THE PRESIDENT

An important tradition in inauguration ceremonies is the bringing of greetings on behalf of the many communities of the university. See page 9 for biographies of today's greeters.

INTRODUCTION OF PRESIDENT HOSTETTER

President Hostetter has chosen her former college classmate and lifelong friend, Laela Sturdy, to introduce her to our community.

Laela Sturdy is the managing partner of CapitalG, a venture capital firm with >$10B AUM. Laela has invested in some of the world's most consequential companies, including Stripe, Duolingo (DUOL), Gusto, UiPath (PATH), and Whatnot. She serves on numerous boards and is known for her high level of engagement, wide-ranging expertise, and unwavering commitment to every investment. Laela joined CapitalG shortly after its inception in 2013 from Google, where, as Managing Director of Emerging Businesses, she launched and scaled a number of domestic and international high-growth businesses and held leadership roles on the YouTube and Google Search teams.

Before joining Google in 2007, Laela was a consultant at Bain & Company. She holds an AB in biochemistry from Harvard College, an MSc in multimedia systems from Trinity College Dublin and an MBA from the Stanford Graduate School of Business. An avid basketball player and former captain of her college women's team, Laela enjoys spending time listening to live music with her wife and kids in San Francisco.

INVESTITURE AND PRESENTATION OF SYMBOLS OF OFFICE

The investiture is a formal statement made by the chair of the board of trustees to confer the office of the presidency upon the individual. Symbols of office evoke the authority of the president or symbolize the university's history or traditions. Members of the Hamline University Board of Trustees will present President Hostetter with four symbols of office in today's ceremony.

Presidential Regalia

President Hostetter's regalia is in the Hamline colors of red and gray. The sleeves of the robe have four chevrons, a styling reserved for university presidents. The chevrons on the sleeves are in Hamline colors, red with gray piping. The Hamline seal is embroidered on the red panels on the front of the robe. She wears her earned academic hood for a doctorate in education from Columbia University.

Seal

The university seal appears on official documents such as diplomas and certificates. It includes an open book and three Latin words connoting Hamline's values: Religio, or religion, encourages the development of an individual's personal values and religious beliefs within a community of learners; literae, or learning, encourages intellectual exploration through the liberal arts and sciences; and libertas, or freedom, encourages the respect for freedom in the pursuit of truth, knowledge, and justice. The president receives the Hamline University seal in the form of a medallion worn on a chain over the robe. The chain includes a small flame element on either side representing the United Methodist relationship. The names and years of service of all Hamline University presidents are engraved on the links of this chain.

Charter

The university's charter was granted to the "Trustees of the Hamline University of Minnesota" and signed by Territorial Governor Willis A. Gorman on March 3, 1854—four years before Minnesota became a state.

The charter symbolizes the university founders' enduring values and vision to establish "an institution of learning for the education of youth of both sexes...." The original charter was burned in a building fire in 1883. For Hamline's 150th anniversary in 2004, a replica of the original charter was created using special paper and letterpress printing. President Hostetter will receive a framed reproduction during her installation ceremony.

Mace

The presidential mace is a highly ornamented staff of metal or wood, deriving from the mace originally used as a weapon to protect a sovereign. The mace represents the authority invested in the president by the Board of Trustees and is present at inaugurations, commencements, and other academic ceremonies such as convocation. By tradition, one of the longest-serving professors at Hamline carries the mace at the front of the academic procession.

This mace, designed in 2014, reflects Hamline's commitment to its core values, and inspires us to fully embrace the traditions of the university's Methodist founders. The Methodist flame and the university seal sit atop a carved walnut shaft with the words from the seal embedded: religio, literae, libertas.

ABOUT HAMLINE UNIVERSITY

Hamline University graduated the first two students to complete bachelor's degrees in the state of Minnesota in 1859. Founded five years earlier by Methodists in Red Wing, Minnesota, Hamline has led the way in higher education and opportunity for its graduates ever since.

The top private regional university in Minnesota in U.S. News & World Report's 2026 ranking of Midwest regional universities, Hamline's mission is to create a diverse and collaborative community of learners dedicated to developing students' knowledge, values, and skills for successful lives of leadership, scholarship, and service.

COLLEGE OF LIBERAL ARTS

The College of Liberal Arts is dedicated to preparing compassionate global citizens for a life of fulfillment and service by helping students maximize their intellectual, creative, and leadership potential. Students collaborate with dedicated faculty whose expertise spans the arts, humanities, natural sciences and social sciences. They are challenged in and out of the classroom to create and apply knowledge in local and global contexts as they cultivate an ethic of civic responsibility, social justice, and inclusive leadership and service.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

The Hamline School of Business goes beyond the world of business. Its holistic approach dissolves the narrow confines of expertise to produce a new generation of leaders: forward-thinking, ethical, and with a broad worldview. With program offerings that span today's demand for leaders in business, analytics, management, public administration, and more, students focus on their career track while also gaining valuable insights into public, private, and nonprofit sectors. Imaginative, inquisitive, innovative, integrative—these are the characteristics of a university where people learn how to think.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION AND LEADERSHIP

Passion for teaching and learning lies at the center of the Hamline School of Education and Leadership. With a first-rate faculty and a challenging, integrated curriculum, the school is on the cutting edge, continually responding to the ever-evolving needs of the field. This entrepreneurial spirit empowers students to find their own voices as they engage in creative thought, reflection, and partnership.
